SHARP NEGATIVES RATE SHARP PRINTS! That's the only way to get and hold audience attention—to do full justice to a script. Answer: Go Eastman all the way—negative and print-stock. And give the print-maker time to do his job right. Also, in the case of questions—production, processing, projection—always get in touch with Eastman Technical Service.

Foreword

¶ Quigley Publications offers herewith the 35th annual edition of the International Motion Picture Almanac, conscious indeed of the responsibility which goes with that span of years, and of the notable tradition which has been built up in that time. We live in a changing world, and the industry of the motion picture is no exception. The pages of the Almanac reflect those changes, yet maintain a matchless record of accurate recording of existing facilities in the various areas of activity and identity of personnel within the industry. A glance into the pages of the Almanac offers convincing evidence that the art and industry of the theatre screen is very much alive and that its future in significant development is assured. The Almanac's tradition will continue to be maintained.

1952	$1,134,000,000

The estimated box office gross for 1963 is $1,415,000,000, based on a projection of a trend which has continued now at an accelerating pace since 1957, generally considered the low point of motion picture theatre prosperity. This expansion trend is shown in nearly all statistical indices of the business. Although attendance is rising only slowly—it is estimated for 1963 at about 46,000,000 average weekly—grosses have been increasing as a result of the increased number of advanced price hard ticket attractions now playing regularly.

Construction of new theatres in 1963 both indoor and outdoor continue at an accelerating pace. In mid summer of this year it was established that approximately 175 new indoor theatres had opened, were under construction or were definitely planned. Many of these particularly those projected by major circuits were in shopping centers or new areas of heavy population. In the same period about 50 drive-in theatres were started or planned.

Gross receipts and employment figures for the years 1958-1962 (Department of Commerce):

	1959	1960	1961	1962
Pay of Employees	$754,000,000	$754,000,000	$833,000,000	$805,000,000
Full Time Employees	168,000	163,000	161,000	153,000
Average number of full and part-time Employees	184,000	192,000	183,000	174,000
Average earnings, full-time Employees	$4,810	$5,072	$4,913	5,000

NUMBER OF THEATRES:

There were 13,000 permanent four-wall theatres regularly exhibiting motion pictures as of July, 1962, and 4,800 drive-in theatres, more than a third of which are open all year round.

The 4,800 drive-in theatres operating at mid-year, represent a growth in that field from 100 theatres in 1946. Average capacity is estimated at 550 cars. Drive-in theatres account for approximately 23 percent of the total box office gross. (For a list of drive-in theatres operating in the U. S. see Drive-in Theatres section, starting on page 571).

There are about 700 circuits, each with four or more theatres, operating some 53% of the total houses. For a list of circuits in the U. S. and Canada see Theatre Circuits section, starting on page 503.

There are about 6,800 individuals or companies operating the remaining 47% of the theatres.

It is estimated that gross refreshment sales in indoor and drive-in theatres total over $500,000,000 annually, that each indoor theatre patron spends an average of eight cents on refreshments, and each drive-in patron 20 cents.

ATTENDANCE

A study prepared by Alfred Politz Research, Inc., for the Saturday Evening Post analyzed the motion picture audience according to frequency of attendance, income, age, sex and education, and listed by age groups the "lost audience", the percentage of the population that does not attend movies. It showed:

Twenty-six per cent of those who do not attend are in the 10 to 19 age group and 33 per cent are over 55.

On the other hand 52.6 per cent of those who attend movies once a week or more are in the same 10 to 19 age group. Of those over 55 who attend, 42.8 per cent go only once a year or less.

Of the entire cross section who attend more or less regularly, the largest percentage—23.2—attend once a year or less; 17.1 per cent attend once a week or more, 12.2 per cent twice or three times a month, 14.3 per cent about once a month, 15.1 per cent two or three times a year, and 5.8 per cent rarely, i.e. less than once a year.

Installation of 70mm equipment, capable of projecting both 35mm and 70mm prints in any of the new wide film processes advanced rapidly during 1961 and theatre installations, by exchange area, as of August 31, 1962, are listed below:

The Motion Picture Herald Institute of Industry Opinion in a recent study of theatre operating budgets which indicated that on the basis of a national average, theatre expenditures break down as follows:

THE HOUSE, including rent or the equivalent; mortgage payments; depreciation of building and equipment; heat, light, power, telephone and any other costs incurred as owner or tenant ..... 24.5 cents

THE STAFF, including all salary and wage payments to regular and part time employees; also cost of uniforms, etc. ..... 26.6 cents

The study indicated that in areas serving populations of up to 7,500 one-third of the theatres reporting were operating at deficits running from two to eight per cent, computed solely on the basis of the box office dollar, without inclusion of revenues from refreshment sales. Theatres in other population areas reported the operating profit figure at from 5 cents to 9 cents.

PRODUCTION COSTS:

Department of Commerce statistics show that the cost of motion picture production of all types in the United States has increased sharply every year since 1921 when it put the annual cost at $86,000,000. The same source placed production costs at $184,000,000 in 1929, at $215,000,000 in 1939 and at better than $460,000,000 in 1948. The Almanac estimates production investment of all types in excess of $500,000,000 in 1963.

According to industry estimates, the average feature production cost of the major U. S. companies increased almost four times since the beginning of World War II. In 1941, average cost per feature was $400,000. In 1949, this had risen to more than $1,000,000. The Almanac estimates average cost per production in 1963 at $1,500,000.

THE HISTORY OF OSCAR

OSCAR, the golden symbol of fame conferred by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, in its present form, has reached full maturity. Long since his first appearance on the scene of glory in Hollywood his birth, origins and history have become confused in tradition and much elaborated myth.

Oft beset by perplexed inquiries in the years between, Motion Picture Almanac set about research for the purpose of presenting for the industry the truth about Oscar.

Oscar was nameless when he came into the world as an award symbol the year the Academy was founded, 1927, and he remained so for four years, known then just as "the statuette."

The idea for a statuette originated at a meeting of the first board of governors of the Academy. Cedric Gibbons, now executive art director for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, after hearing discussions of certificates, scrolls, medals and plaques, urged that the awards should be represented by a figure of dignity and individual character which recipients would be proud to display. While he talked he sketched a figure and design. It was Oscar's first picture. The drawing was adopted and sent for execution in the round to George Stanley, a Los Angeles sculptor. From his hands came the Oscar who has been growing in fame ever since.

THE golden figure was still without a name that day in 1931 when Mrs. Margaret Herrick, present executive secretary of the Academy, reported for her first day's work as librarian. A copy of the statuette stood on an executive's desk and she was formally introduced to it as the foremost member of the organization.

She regarded it a moment. "He reminds me," she observed, "of my Uncle Oscar."

Nearby sat a newspaper columnist and the next day his syndicated copy contained the line "Employees have affectionately dubbed their famous statuette 'Oscar'." From that day on he has been Oscar.

The Academy's Oscar is ten inches high, weighs seven pounds, his insides being bronze and his exterior gold plate. He costs about a hundred dollars.

ON MAY 6, 1929, first year awards were presented—for achievements of 1927-28—eleven "Oscars" were presented by the Academy. Since that day the number of statuettes given the annual "choice few" has increased. During the intervening years a total of several hundred golden knights have gone to persons contributing "best achievements" in motion pictures.

The trophy is fully protected by copyright and is produced by only one manufacturer, licensed by the Academy. Use of the statuette or reproduction of it in any manner is prohibited, without written permission of the Academy.

ACADEMY AWARD WINNERS OF 1962

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences was founded in May, 1927, in Hollywood with 36 charter members, including production executives and cinema luminaries. Its aims included a determination to raise the standards of production educationally, culturally and scientifically.

In the years since its inception this non-subsidized organization has grown to embrace the 12 principal branches of film making. Through these branches almost 2,000 active motion picture members have been gathered from the acting field, the cinematograph group, the executive branch, the film editors division, the music group, the writers, the directors, the sound division, the art directors, the short subject and the public relations fields.

Voting for the Academy Awards of Merit is done by the entire membership with each of the 12 branches creating its own procedure and conducting individual nominations in the manner best suited to its special requirements The final nominating ballot from each branch is limited to a maximum of five entrants. After nominations have been closed the Academy holds screenings of the nominated films in order that eligible voters can review them. A final ballot is then prepared and sent to the Academy membership. These ballots are marked and returned to Price, Waterhouse and Company, certified public accountants, who prepare the tabulation. The names of the winners are announced only at the annual Academy Awards presentation ceremonies.
